By Jyotikar Pattni @ www.hanss.co.uk

Purusha-ParamEishwaar-ParamAtman-ParamBrahma

The manifest, the spirit, the subtle and the un-manifest

Bhagavan Vishnu's names are classified as 'Vyapaka' and 'Avyapaka' Mantras. 'Vyapaka' names bring out Lord's all pervading nature and his eternal grandeur macro-cosmic swaroopam also [virat swaroop]. 'Avyapaka' names portray his 'Leelas' [illusion-maya] and Gunas [subtle qualities of creation, preservation and dissolution] of his one or more of his avatharams [incarnations to behold balance in akaal]. Rishis consider that Vyapaka mantras are important than Avyapaka names, and within 'Vyapaka' names, only 3 vyapaka names are most important; they are 'Narayana', 'Vishnu' and 'Vasudeva'. As can be explicitly illustrated by Vishnu Gayatri mantra:

"Aum Narayanayeh Vidmahe Vasudevaya Dheemahi Thanno Vishnu Prachoddaayatt"

Out of these 3 vyapaka mantras, 'Narayana' sapham [invocation] is considered more important because the Nama 'Vishnu' only brings out Lord's all pervading nature and does not bring out his Gunas. Similarly, the 'Vasudeva' sapham bring out the meaning that all are 'in Him' ('Sarvam vasathi- Vasudeva") but again fails in revealing his gunas. However, Narayana sapham elucidates an all pervading Eishwaar and brings out his roopam, gunam and vyapthi [form, subtle qualities, and divinity in karmic time].

ParaBrahman is most subtle, it is beyond the manifest gunas. For instance, In Sri Vishnu Purnam, Sri Vyasa defines meaning of 'Bhagavan', - means the one who has immeasurable Aiswarya, Vairaygya and Knowledge. This is again confirmed in various upakyanas in Srimad Bhagavatam. (For instance in Gajendra stuti, even though Gajendra starts with 'Nirvishesha brahman' addressing as 'Namo Akila karanaya, nish karanaya... etc, he switches over to glorification of gunas and attributes after seeing Him). The devotees of any devatas are called as in their names while devotees of Sriman Narayana are called 'Bhagvatas'

The gita of all the demi Gods are called in their respective while BHAGAVAN VISHNU'S gita is Lord's Gita is called as 'Bhagvatt Gita'. Vishnu is the object of worship by many Bhagavatas as elucidated in Shrimad Bhagavad Gita. For the Bhaktas, the Bhagavatas, we recite the following shloka foremost to remove obstacles:

Aum Shuklaam bara dharam Vishnum Shashi Varnam Chathurr
Bhujamm Prassanna Vadhanam Dhyaayeth Sarva Vighnopa
Shaanthaye. Aum Sri Vishnuvey namah; Aum Vishnuvey namah; Aum Vishnuvey namah.

Aum I bow to thee Oh Vishnum the grandeur of all pervading, clad beautifully in white radiance whose magnificent glow resembles that of the full moon, having four arms, and a serene countenance, may thou ward off all obstacles as I recite your name thrice.

Yasya smarana Mathrena, Janma Samsara bandhanath.
Vimuchayate Nama Tasmai , Vishnave Prabha Vishnave
OM Namō Vishnave Prabha Vishnave

Bow I before Him, The all-powerful Vishnu, The mere thought of whom. Releases one forever, Of the ties of birth and life. Bow I before the all powerful Vishnu.

Vishnu Stuti prarambha:

Bhagavan Vishnu has the hue of the rain bearing cloud, and his auras reflect a rainbow. He is dressed in white and yellow, golden hued silky Dhotti, with golden robe and white silky shawl. He is adorned with the divine mark called Srivathsa – rare tilaka from kumkum sindhoor and chandana. Bhagavan Vishnu has a radiantly shining swaroop (form), the divine ornament known as Kaustubha (signifying supremacy) adorns Lord. He has large eyes that resemble the lotus petal; only the meritorious can attain Bhagavan Vishnu for he is the all pervading supreme Great Divine spirit, master and God – I bow to that supreme Great God who is Vishnu, Narayan, and Vasudevayeh, /3|

Namah-Samastha-Bhootaa-naam-aadhi-bhootaaya-bhoo-

Salutations, obeisance, highest respects to Shree Vishnu, Bhagavan Vishnu is the primary force, primordial, responsible for creating all beings of this universe. Vishnu-Bhagavan is the support of the mother earth divine. Bhagavan Vishnu's guna swaroop or forms may be innumerable. Vishnu is all encompassing and all encompassing universe is him. Bhagavan Vishnu. |4|

Aum Naaraayanaaya Vidhmahey Vaasudevaaya dheemahi
Ttanno Vishnuh prachoddayaath. Aum Namoh Narayana |5/

I invoke the blessings of Narayan Vaasudeva and Vishnu, to ever inspire me, protect me, and to nurture me in this life, to let me rejoice his mantra-manjaree in divine marathons of music, rhythm, sound, songs, poetry, lyrics, rites, rituals, and much more |5|

Aum Shuklaam bara dharam Vishnum Shashi Varnam Chathurr

To recite Vishnu stuti, one must also invoke its effulgent energies of Saraswatti, laxshmee and Kali whose energies Savitree the ray of the sun carries to nurture, cherish, bring abundance, and proliferations from the blue skies in rain, grain, wealth and health. Bhagavan rests in Gokula in blissfulness. 'Bhaja Govindam- Govindam-Govindam' is Bhagavan's emancipation mantra.

To that HARI, the Govinda, we recite the Hari Naama Mala Stotram for our Vishnu stuti to be reciprocated in full – It is like the fruit of our worship touches the earthen clay where we recide.

Aum Vishnave namah Aum Vishnave namah Aum

This Vishnu Stuti has been compiled for the benefit of all Hindus. It may be published in any Hindu website without the author's permission. I dedicate all of my efforts in compiling this stuti to Bhagavan VISHNU Narayan today being full moon. It is most beloved of Bhagavan on the full moon. Please recite it and enjoy the bliss of the remaining PURSHOTTAM MAASA.

Hari Aum Tat Sat Swaha Aum Namoh Narayanayeh Aum Premma Shantih.
